Yesterday morning, David woke up early. He ate a quick breakfast and then he walked to the bus stop. His friend, Sarah, did not wait for him there. Did she miss the bus? He wondered. He arrived at school just on time. His teacher gave them a new project. David did not understand all the instructions. Did his classmates help him? No, they did not. After school, he played football with his friends, but he did not score any goals. He returned home tired. His parents asked him about his day. He told them about the project. They did not seem surprised.
